Faccin and Fields seek nomination for auditor

Two candidates face off in Democratic primary

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

A race for only one countywide office opened up Monday, the first day to file petitions to run as candidates for the March 21 primary election.

MADISON COUNTY

In Madison County, Rick J. Faccin, 1620 Walker St., Alton, faces Pete Fields, 119 Sherwood Drive, Glen Carbon, in the Democratic primary for county auditor. Potential candidates for circuit clerk and coroner have not filed so far.

Candidates have until Monday to file.

Faccin and Fields had opened fire on each other even before Monday's filing. Fields followed up the opening volleys Monday with a news release criticizing Faccin for failing to prevent a controversial state pension plan loophole that allowed some former Madison County Board members to cash in at taxpayers' expense.

"I am running because I

Among candidates filing Monday for Keshner's vacancy were Circuit Judge Ann Callis, 35, of Troy, who recently was appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court to fill Keshner's seat through December 2000; former Associate Judge Michael Meehan, 48, of Edwardsville, and attorney Larry A. Calvo, 51, of Glen Carbon.

No one has yet filed for DeLaurenti's job, although Bond County State's Attorney John Knight, a Democrat, said he is circulating petitions and plans to make an announcement on Thursday.

District discusses realignment plan

Goal is to keep student groups together

By Michael Hill
Staff writer

A redistricting plan proposed by a handful of Granite City School District administrators would close Marshall Elementary School, relocate its students and possibly lay off some of its staff.

School officials said Marshall is being targeted because its enrollment of about 200 is by far the smallest of the district's elementary schools and continues to drop significantly each year.

During the past four years, enrollment has declined throughout the district. This year alone, the district's enrollment has declined by more than 250 students, causing financial concerns among school board members as they study a redistricting plan. Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen said the district could lose from $1.4 to 2 million in state and federal assistance due to

"Instead of dividing students when they're ready to attend middle school, it would be nice to keep them together as a group."

Three grants awarded to Granite City School District

Money received will be put toward individual projects

By Michael Hill
Staff writer

The Granite City School District was recently awarded three grants, a $900 Illinois Power Education Grant and two STARnet Region IV mini-grants.

The grants were secured by Granite City School District grant writer Dr. Goni Michaeloff and were accepted by the school board at its meeting Tuesday night.

Nine educators will share the Illinois Power grant, each receiving $100 toward student projects. Grant recipients are Diana Prazna of Granite City High School, Kathy Grippi of Grigsby Middle School, Karen Quick of Frohardt Elementary School, Davne Tyler of Maryville Elementary School, Deborah Milton of Mitchell Elementary School, Alicia Poplichak of Niedringhaus Elementary School, Kathy Lybberopoulos of Wilson Elementary School and Carole Huffman of Worthen Elementary School.

The StarNet Region IV mini-grants were awarded to Laura Coracy, an early childhood education teacher at Wilson Elementary School and to Ann Smith, an early childhood education teacher at Prather Elementary School.

Coracy received a $400 grant for a project. Smith received $450 for the Lending Library program. The library program will promote reading through the use of supplementary books from the school's library.

In other matters, Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen said the district administered a survey that students, parents and educators were asked if they were in favor of school video cameras and uniforms, fences around the schools and the

Early spring recess means early races

By Dana Heupels

Some Illinoisans might be happy about the General Assembly's plan to adjourn its session next spring in mid-April instead of the customary end of May. It gives lawmakers less time to cause mischief.

But not everyone agrees with the decision.

At the urging of state Senate President James "Pat" Philip (R-Wood Dale), legislative leaders have agreed to end the spring session on April 14, six weeks earlier than usual, and 10 weeks before the June 30 deadline that was in effect until only a few years ago.

"The tradition and custom of the General Assembly is that in the even-numbered years, you only do emergency and budget issues, so you don't have the full docket that you have in the other years of the session," said Patty Schnib, Philip's spokeswoman.

"So it does offer an opportunity to adjourn a little earlier," she said.

Despite the compressed schedule, legislative leaders made sure the number of session days—about 43—would be close to the number they normally work during an even-numbered year.

"There might be an earlier adjournment, but it is not a shorter schedule," said Steve Brown, spokesman for House Speaker Michael Madigan (D-Chicago).

"I don't think anyone can make the case that taxpayers aren't getting their money's worth with the same number of session days," he said.

Cindy Huebner, spokeswoman for Senate Minority Leader Emil Jones, said the Chicago Democrat also believes the compact session can work.

"He said, 'As long as we can get the work that we need to do, then it's fine. But if things are not done, then there's a concern,'" she said.

But there is at least one dissenter from the political ranks: House Republican Leader Lee Daniels of Elmhurst.

"The concern is, compressing it into that length of time, does that give the legislators enough time to really examine things?" said Gregg Durham, Daniels' spokesman.

And another two, people who want to be heard on issues—not only in Springfield but at home—won't have as much time to be heard. So that is a concern," Durham said.

That sentiment is echoed by Charles N. Wheeler III, director of the Public Affairs Reporting program at the University of Illinois at Springfield.

"The workload for a legislator isn't measured solely by the time he or she spends here in Springfield. It's not measured by floor sessions or committee hearings. I think part of it is being back in the community, having district office hours, having citizens come in, having the ability to go out and meet with people," he said.

Wheeler, who was a Statehouse reporter for more than 20 years for the Chicago Sun-Times, also believes such a move will further expand the power of the four legislative leaders: Philip, Madigan, Daniels and Jones.

"It's going to put an enormous time strain on legislators themselves because they will be expected to consider important legislation, including the state budget, in a much reduced space of time," he said.

"I think it works to the leaders' advantage, because when everybody's crushed and you're at a deadline... the budget hits somebody's desk and it's a thousand pages and somebody will stand up and say, 'I don't know what's in here.' But the whole dynamic is, 'It doesn't matter. We have to get out of here.' That plays into the hands of the leaders."

The philosophical force behind the compressed session is Philip's "limited view of government," Wheeler said. Wheeler also speculates that Madigan, who is state Democratic chairman as well as House speaker, might also see a political advantage in a compact session.

Incumbent legislators will be hard at work in Springfield, and perhaps giving their challengers more of a chance to defeat them.

If a Democratic challenger beats an incumbent in Chicago, chances are the Democrat will still win in the general election in November, Wheeler said. But moderate suburban Republicans often face challenges from far-right opponents.

"Should a right-wing wacko win that nomination," he said, "that could put that district in play for a Democrat to pick it off in a general election... I've always thought Madigan's bottom line was what's good to elect Democrats in the House."

Madigan's spokeswoman, Brown, said he doesn't believe that scenario was discussed. If that were to happen, he said, Gov. George Ryan and Philip, both Republicans, wouldn't have gone along with the compressed session.

"People who have primaries will have to work a little harder in both their campaign and legislative duties," he said.

As for Daniels' worries about legislators being hard pressed to research bills before they vote on them, Brown counters that when Daniels' Republicans controlled the House in 1995, they passed 18 bills under the one roll call without any discussion from anyone.

"That's the ultimate hypocrisy for someone like Lee Daniels to raise concerns about members having time to study bills," Brown said.

And Jones' spokeswoman, Huebner, said lawmakers still will be able to respond to the wishes of the people they represent.

"As far as the constituents being in touch, with e-mail and with regular old pick-up-the-phone and calling and the letters we receive, I don't think that will be a problem."

Do the right thing

TO THE EDITOR:

I share the view and concerns of forum writer Charles Sullivan regarding the arrogance displayed by Collinsville Library trustee Norm Schiller when he caused the arrest of resident Bob DesPain while DesPain was exercising his statutory right to videotape the Collinsville Library public meeting. Schiller seems to be the front man for Library Board chairman Rich Wallace. Why is it that other board members sit in the background while Schiller makes all the noise?

Sullivan raises an interesting question when he asks "Can a resident's civil rights be violated with impunity by a responsible official?" In my view, the answer is regrettably yes. We see examples of that almost everyday in the newspapers and these derelicts of duty then use the legal resources paid for by the taxpayers to defend their violations of law.

Sullivan asks if impartial judge and jury can be convened in the 3rd Judicial District of Illinois in this case. To that I can only say that after a jury complies with the judge's special instruction, the meaning of the words "fair and impartial" could be little more than a wish in the wind.

Educate to prevent

TO THE EDITOR:

I recently had the honor of hosting an Elder Abuse Task Force Hearing with several of my colleagues from the Illinois House to discuss the distressing issue of elder abuse. We heard from many individuals from the Metro East that have witnessed or been a victim of elder abuse.

One of the victims was Margaret Ireland. Ireland lost $72,000 to an individual who befriended her and offered to drive her around the community for a modest wage. As the hearing continued, we heard that she was clearly not alone.

Elder abuse occurs in many forms—physical, mental and emotional. Too often it goes unreported because the senior is dependent upon the abuser to pay bills, run errands and takes care of them. Many experts believe that only 10 percent of all elder abuse victims report the abuse.

One of the answers to solving this problem is education. It is incumbent upon us as a community to aggressively pursue education opportunities to inform the public, especially our senior citizens, about elder abuse.

Community leaders and institutions, such as banks and grocery stores, need to be alert to warning signs of elder abuse. Families need to know that they should be also on the look out for warning signs. Seniors need to know that alternative care will be provided to them if they report their abuser.

I intend to work during the upcoming legislature to promote education about the issue of elder abuse. I am also open to other suggestions that people may have on this issue. If I can ever be of any assistance, feel free to call me at 345-2176.

Do the steps first

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is in response to the downtown manager's plan to improve the atmosphere on Main Street. I think it is shameful to look at the steps leading into the city hall. Here we are asked to spend $300,000 on Main Street and we can't even repair the steps leading to a building that is used by hundreds of people every day.

I agree thoroughly with Grider Gwin that by narrowing Main Street would not accomplish anything but chaos and confusion.

You may ask where the $300,000 figure came from. Twenty percent of $1.5 million is $300,000. The city does not need to spend this amount of money on Main Street when the money could be used for more desperately needed projects.

Food Pantry thanks

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the O'Fallon Community Food Pantry, its board, volunteers and clients, thank everyone who made the Boy Scout food drive a success. So many people worked hard and donated their time and resources. Volunteers who delivered and sorted the food; local businesses who donated boxes, bags, food and money; residents who filled the bags with donations. Boy Scout leaders who give so much of themselves; Boy Scouts' families who support their Scout and of course, the Boy Scouts themselves. Because of all your hard work, local families will have some help fighting hunger this winter.

Unfortunately, more and more families need our services. In fact, six months ago, we served and averaged of 100 families per month, however, that number has risen to 120.

Although the economy is booming and unemployment is record lows, the nature of employment has changed. Companies who downsize or hire contract workers, for example, benefit from the same work yet no longer offer secure salaries, paid vacations or benefits. Many of our clients are healthy, working adults who are only able to earn minimum wage with few or no benefits. It is impossible to support a family on such slight means. Our clients are very grateful for our food, without it they would be unable to get by.

In closing, please don't forget about us. Once the holidays have passed and winter melts into spring, the O'Fallon Community Food Pantry will still be open. May the spirit of holiday giving last throughout the year.

Thank you, and happy holidays.

SIU professors sue to remove chairman from Trustee Board

By Deborah L. Bates
Staff writer

Three Southern Illinois University Carbondale professors have filed a lawsuit against the Board of Trustees requesting the removal of chairman A.D. VanMeter from the board.

The professors claim that

"We think the lawsuit is totally without merit. We believe the board appointments will be upheld."

Scott Kaiser
SIU spokesman

since the January reappointment of VanMeter, the board contains more Republicans than allowed by state law. The professors say they have been affected by the discrepancy.

The lawsuit argues one of the trustees, George Wilkins, may have switched to the GOP after he was reappointed in 1997.

"We think the lawsuit is totally without merit," SIU spokesman Scott Kaiser said. "We believe the board appointments will be upheld."

Board members are appointed by the governor, whose staff has reviewed the appointments and said they are legal. Kaiser added that January's vote was bipartisan and that both parties thought VanMeter was a good appointment.

State law says that no more than four members of the board should be from the same political party as the governor. Wilkins was appointed as a Democrat, but has since voted as Republican, and this makes VanMeter's appointment illegal, the plaintiffs say.

The professors claim actions taken by the board since VanMeter's appointment in January should be rescinded, including the controversial dismissal of Carbondale Chancellor Jo Ann Argersinger.

When a head of a campus is changed, that affects the whole campus. It has affected me and almost everybody on the campus. I think people are very happy that somebody at long last is standing up."

Bary Malik
Physics professor

Malik and the other plaintiffs, Joan Friedenberg and John Gregory, say research grants have been endangered, they have had an increased teaching load because they are unable to get graduate assistants, and they have lost travel grants.

While this may be true, Kaiser said, the lawsuit means that pay raises and tenure for faculty and staff, which are voted on by the board, would also be overturned.

"I don't think they really want to do that," Kaiser said.

Finance Committee votes on carry-over spending

Board approves restrictions on unused funding

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

The County Board Finance Committee voted Tuesday to restrict carry-over spending to amounts already under contract from the previous year.

The vote means some departmental funds may have to do without as much as $207,000 in funds saved from the previous year that departments had requested to be carried over into the current year that began Dec. 1.

Committee members previously discussed allowing about half the money to be carried over, but voted to restrict carry-over spending to amounts already under contract. Under the plan, departments are to attempt to live within their budgets, and if they run short, come to the Finance Committee to ask for money from reserves to finish out the year.

The Circuit Court submitted a request to spend all of its $247,000 left over from the previous year. Only $40,000 of that amount will be carried over, enough to make this year's budget equal to last year's budget.

Supervisor of Administration James Monday said some of the previous year's funds must be spent because of sales contracts already approved but not completed. The Sheriff's Department, for example, has a contract to buy about $97,000 worth of patrol cars.

The County Board last month approved a $92 million budget for the fiscal year that began Dec. 1. The budget includes about $31 million for general fund operations and about $1 million for general fund capital projects. Much of the annual budget is made up of special tax funds that are spent outside the general fund.

The board previously adopted a resolution calling for no new programs or additional positions after Monday pointed out that a practice of allowing department heads to carry over unspent funds each year was causing the annual budget to grow and cutting into reserves.

If the full County Board approves the committee's recommendation today, that policy will remain intact.

Candidates file petitions for Madison County elections

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

About 100 people showed up at Madison County Clerk Mark Von Nida's office Monday, the first day for filing petitions to run as candidates in the March 21 primary election.

Candidates for precinct committeeman, county board, auditor, recorder of deeds, circuit clerk and state's attorney lined up to present their petitions and get their names on the ballot for the March 21 ballot.

"We had a lot of people lined up, and we had seven people behind the counter to help them," Von Nida said. Notably absent among potential County Board candidates was one incumbent, Wanda Stille of Edwardsville, widow of the late Bob Stille.

Jack Minner of 632 Harvard St., in Edwardsville, and Greg Worthen of 34 Hallock Ave., also in Edwardsville, filed to run for Stille's District 18 seat.

"I just wanted to fulfill Bob's term, and I'm too old to start a new career," Wanda Stille, 67, said. "I started this one at 67, and I want to retire before age 70." She said she will serve out the remaining year-and-a-half of her late husband's term as Edwardsville Township supervisor. County Board election petitions filed as of Wednesday were:

Several dozen candidates also filed for precinct committeeman. Five candidates filed for the District 25 seat, left vacant by the controversial resignation of Don Rea, who was accused of taking a full-time job as Nameoki Township streets supervisor, just so he could take advantage of a loophole in the state law covering enhanced pensions for county officials.

County Board chairman Rudy Papa said he will not appoint a replacement for Rea to serve out the rest of the term until he sees who is going to file to run for the seat. He said seven people have contacted him so far about filling the seat.

Papa said he also is waiting to see whether Gov. George Ryan will sign a bill to close the pension loophole. Candidates have until next Monday to file. County officials will draw names to determine ballot position in races in which more than one person showed up at 8 a.m. Monday to file petitions. The drawing will be 1:30 p.m. Dec. 22.

The new rule requires facilities with certain quantities of chemicals and other regulated substances to explain the preventative measures and emergency response programs in place to prevent major incidents and protect the community.

While the public is invited, these plans may affect only those individuals who live or work within one mile of the Illinois American water treatment plant. The meeting will be held:

Two dead, two in jail due to stolen cell phone

Pair shot during attempt to recover stolen property

By Wade Alberty
Staff writer

Two people are dead and two suspects are now in custody — all because of a stolen cellular phone, Metropolitan St. Louis Major Case Squad investigators say.

David V. Taylor, 19, and Marcus C. Bradley, 20, both of the Parkfield Terrace subdivision, have been charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the Dec. 5 killings of Tina L. Jackson, 20, and Montez L. Wilson, 19.

The shooting happened inside the residence Jackson shared with Wilson's older brother, Dwayne Wilson, at Laura Lee Drive, in the Parkfield Terrace subdivision, in unincorporated St. Clair County, between Cahokia and Centerville. East St. Louis Sgt. Delbert Marion, deputy commander of the Major Case Squad, said the theft of Dwayne Wilson's cellular phone started the chain

"This is one of the strangest cases I have ever seen. We got very little cooperation from the neighbors. It didn't seem to matter that two people had been killed. It was as if nobody cared."

reaction that led to the murders.

Dwayne Wilson, in an attempt to retrieve his phone, punched the thief in the mouth.

In retaliation the thief's younger brother, along with four other men, broke into Jackson's home, murdered the two victims and ransacked the house, stealing various items, according to Marion.

"The theft of a cell phone is the stupid reason two people are dead," Marion said. "They (the suspects) went looking for the victim's boyfriend, and he wasn't there. And from there, it all went downhill."

Police were called to the scene early morning on Dec. 5 to investigate. Shortly after that, the Major Case Squad was activated. The big break in the case came when one of the suspects came forward to police because of his guilty conscience.

"This is one of the strangest cases I have ever seen," Marion said. "We got very little cooperation from the neighbors. It didn't seem to matter that two people had been killed. It was as if nobody cared."

Five children were in the house at the time of the murder. Three of the children were Jackson's.

None of the children was injured.

Police are still searching for the other three suspects. Bradley and Taylor are currently being held in the St. Clair County Jail in lieu of $5 million bail each.

TOPS offer tips to keep off holiday fat

A few suggestions will help keep from being overstressed and overeating

By Jennifer Saxton
Staff writer

With all the stress the holidays bring, it may also bring unwanted pounds from sweets and parties.

TOPS Club Inc. (Take and keep Pounds Off Sensibly) members know a few ways to help keep the weight off during the holidays.

"You don't have to resign yourself to being over committed and overstressed... and then overreacting by overeating," said Darla Waldron, a representative of TOPS.

• Be assertive and ask for help. Many people eat too much when they're feeling overwhelmed.

• Try new, lighter versions of traditional recipes. Everyone will enjoy the pleasant associations these foods provide without the consequences of extra fat or sugar.

• For a refreshing change, take the focus off food. Pay more attention to the reasons people celebrate: for example, children, decorations, music and all the delightful sights, sounds and smells of the season.

"Take just a few minutes to refocus just for yourself," Waldron said. "The holiday season is so crucial for those watching their weight. Drink plenty of water. It will help you feel fuller and less inclined to eat as much at those holiday parties or family gatherings."

As well as following these tips, TOPS has a few more daily tips to keep everyone focused and in control of what they eat.

Taking one day at a time will get everyone through the tempting holiday season. "Just for one day" suggestions include:

• Plan meals and snacks, and follow that plan throughout the day.

• Schedule 30 minutes for exercise and don't let anything interfere with this appointment.

• Find something to divert your attention from nibbling for at least 10 minutes at a time.

"If they do feel they have gained weight, they need to join a support group because I feel we are one of the best groups in the area," Waldron said. "We are here to help one another when it comes to the crisis of gaining weight."

its decreased enrollment. According to the district's director of technology, Bob Bishoff, the redistricting plan would bus students from Marshall to Wilson Elementary School so that students from Marshall entitled to Title I services would be able to retain them.

Under the plan, Bishoff said students entering the sixth-grade from Lake, Maryville, Mitchell and Worthen elementary schools would be placed at Grigsby, while those entering the sixth-grade from Frohardt, Niedringhaus, Prather and Grigsby would be placed at Coolidge.

Because of student realignment, made possible by current renovations at Grigsby, Coolidge, Maryville and Niedringhaus, the schools would become close to capacity. Coolidge, with about 790 students, would increase to 850, or almost full capacity. Grigsby, on the other hand, has 450 students. It would increase to about 850 students, making it 95 percent filled.

The plan would reduce economic disparity at the middle schools and create special educational space in the schools and would provide for future flexibility and expansion of the schools.

Moreover, Bishoff said, the district would establish a library or media center and music rooms in the elementary schools. The district would also re-district school boundaries so each elementary school would have a student base of about 550 students and would place students at each elementary school at one of the two middle schools.

"We would like to have what we call feeder schools," Bishoff said. "Instead of dividing students when they're ready to attend middle school, it would be nice to keep them together as a group. Also, elementary school students would know what middle school they would attend."

Balen called the plan "fair" and asked the board to vote on it or follow up with another plan as soon as possible. The board plans to address and possibly finalize the redistricting plan at its Jan. 11 meeting.

believe the citizens here deserve better government," Fields said. "The Madison County Board has abused its power by passing perks among each other, and all this is done at the expense of the taxpayers."

Fields was referring to a loophole in the state pension law that allowed former board members Tony Bosich of Wood River and Don Rea of Pontoon Beach to retire at rates three times what they would have otherwise qualified for by taking short-term government jobs at full-time salaries.

"My primary opponent, as a member of the Madison County Board, did not raise an objection to the plan. He signed up for the outrageous pension on the second day it was offered," Fields said. He criticized Board chairman Rudy Papa and

"I believe most taxpayers are as outraged and angered as I am by such rip-offs."

Pete Fields
Candidate for auditor

Madison County democratic party chairman Mac Warfield for endorsing the plan and for endorsing Faccin.

"I believe most taxpayers are as outraged and angered as I am by such rip-offs," Fields said.

Faccin said he opted out of the plan as proof that he, too, is outraged by the "rip-off" of the pension loophole. "I am somewhat baffled by what Mr. Fields has said," Faccin responded. "I agree that the pension plan is a travesty, but he is the chief deputy for the biggest offender, Jack Frandsen."

Faccin and Fields are running to fill the county auditor vacancy left by Fred Bathon, who resigned the post in December 1998 after being elected county treasurer a month earlier. Frandsen, a former County Board member who was appointed to fill in until after the election, has said he will not run for a full term. Fields is chief deputy under Frandsen.

Faccin said he will be out of the pension plan for the rest of his career. He claimed Fields will get into the plan as soon as he can. Faccin said he is running on his record of 21 years of public service, including years as chief financial officer of Catholic Charities.

"I think it is indicative of my public service that I plan to give back my pension, and I can't get back in - nor do I care to," Faccin said.

Fields previously served as county auditor before Bathon, and he also ran unsuccessfully for Congress.

Also Monday, three Democratic incumbents filed for re-election. They are Circuit Clerk Matt Melucci, 1166 N. Bluff Road, Collinsville; Recorder of Deeds Dan Donohoo, 304 Shell Court, East Alton, and State's Attorney William R. "Bill" Haime of Alton.

Two candidates who never have been elected to county-wide office filed to run for Madison County coroner. The incumbent, Dallas Burke, is retiring after her current term.

Steve Nomm, 33 Mikel Drive, Granite City, will seek the Democratic nomination to succeed Burke. Nomm is a detective with the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

use of metal detectors. The survey also asked the participants if they felt the school district was safe. The survey said that parents and educators were in favor of video cameras, but many students thought cameras would be an invasion of privacy.

School uniforms were favored by parents and educators, but not by students. Fencing in the schools received the least favorable response while metal detectors were favored by educators and parents, but not by most students.

ship is Douglas Marti, a Republican attorney. Candidates have until 5 p.m. Dec. 20 to file petitions.

DeLaurenti's decision came only recently, although he has talked about retirement for months.

"I've had 27 years at this job, and four years prior to that as state's attorney, so that's 31 years of public service," he said. "I think probably somebody else should have a turn."

The 66-year-old judge said he had until Dec. 6 to file a declaration of intent to seek retention and chose not to do so.

Three other judges, however, are seeking retention: Circuit Judges Charles Romani of Edwardsville, P.J. O'Neill of Alton and George Moran of Granite City. Their names will appear on next November's general election ballot.

Judges seeking general election must do so on a partisan basis during their first bid. Subsequently, they must seek retention on a nonpartisan basis every six years.

Callis won the endorsement of the Madison County Democratic Central Committee on Saturday. "The (state) Supreme Court and the Democratic Party both showed confidence in me, and I look forward to running in this election," she said.

Meenan, who lost an associate judgeship last June when circuit judges voted not to retain him, said he still stands on his 12 years in office. He now is working in a private practice in Edwardsville.

He said statute prevents him from discussing personal views, but he said he will be active in getting his name out. "That's my plan: shoe leather and the telephone," he said.

Calvo also said he will be an active campaigner, touting his 25 years as an attorney, mostly in civil law.

"My theme is experience. I'll probably hit that quite a bit," he said.

Along with the circuit judge races, there are two associate judgeships to be filled. One comes down to Ralph Mendelsohn of Glen Carbon and Thomas Chapman of Granite City, who are in a runoff for the job being vacated by the retiring Wendell Durr of Edwardsville.

The other is the vacancy created by Callis' shift from associate to circuit judge. Finalists for that job will be announced later this month.

Warriors face SWC test

Granite City hosting 7-1 Belleville East on Friday

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Granite City will get a shot at the starboard side of Belleville Township Friday, as visiting Belleville East comes calling for a Southwestern Conference game.

Warriors coach John VanBuskirk hopes his team can do a better job against the Lancers than it did against Belleville West last Saturday, when the Lancers returned from a seven-day hiatus.

"I thought the week off would help us," VanBuskirk said. "But then not playing really hurt us. We didn't have a good defensive effort (against West) and then when we start missing baskets, it really goes downhill from there."

Led by senior standout Stetson Hairston, the Lancers boast a 7-1 mark and are 1-0 in the SWC. Belleville East's lone loss was to Richmond Heights (Mo.) CBC in the championship game of the Pattonville Tournament in Maryland Heights, Mo.

Belleville East has beaten five Missouri teams, including a 54-44 win on Dec. 9 against Florissant (Mo.) McClellan in the Coca-Cola/KMOX Shootout.

"They have probably the second-best player in the conference in Hairston," VanBuskirk said. "He is always a handful. One person cannot guard him. We will have to work hard and always know where he is at on the floor.

"Then they have a couple other kids who are awfully good players also. They give you a lot of problems. I don't think their bench is as good this year as it was last year. But we still have to stop their best five players, and we are going to have a heck of a defensive effort. After this past weekend, we have to work hard all week on defense."

The Warriors (3-4, 1-1 in the SWC) had beaten through Edwardsville and Triad to reach the 500 mark on Dec. 11. But Saturday, the bricks piled up and the Warriors' self-constructed wall was too high in breach.

"We had a very poor shooting percentage, and we couldn't get anything done," VanBuskirk said. "We just got down on ourselves. We played bad in the first half, and we were still only down 26-21 at halftime. So we felt like we were still in the game, but we hadn't played well in the whole first half. Then we went out and gave up two layups to start the third quarter. That made it 30-21. We didn't make baskets, and when we don't make baskets, we are in trouble."

The five-point halftime deficit grew in the second half as Belleville coasted to the 65-45 victory.

"It was 26-21 for a long period of time in that game, and we had possessions that we should have capitalized on, and we just didn't make baskets," VanBuskirk said. "There is no answer. The kids worked hard in practice, and we just missed shots. We were flat, and that was probably because of the layoff. I don't have a definite answer for that one, but we were flat."

"When you miss baskets and you are not playing good defense in the Southwestern Conference, you are not going to win a basketball game."

The Warriors don't have the benefit — or curse, as the case may be — of time off before their next opponent. Granite faces Jerseyville on Saturday night.

"We like that push about it, not having a bunch of time off before our next game," VanBuskirk said. "But then we have a long layoff before the Collinsville Tournament (Dec. 28-30). So that is somewhat worrisome."

Slow start sinks Lady Warriors

Jerseyville pulls off 20-point win

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City girls were attacked by a pack of Panthers Monday.

As they did last year in a first-round regional win against Granite, Jerseyville's shooters got hot from the field and pinned a 20-point loss on the Warriors.

"They came out and hit early 3-pointers, and that hurt us," Granite City coach John Moad said. "But in our first three times down the court, we missed two layups and were 1 for 2 from the free-throw line. We were down 6-1 instead of being up."

"We couldn't match their intensity early in the game. We did everything right in the second half. We played a very good team straight up in the second half."

But the game was over by the halftime whistle. Granite (3-8) trailed 49-20, but didn't let the Panthers increase their margin, which ended with a 72-52 victory. Jess Wallace led the second-half resurgence. After scoring just three points in the first, the senior sharp-shooter exploded for 18 in the second.

"Jess caught fire in the second half," Moad said. "She carried us. She had 18 points in the second half, and she is capable of doing that at any time. We

Granite City ties Collinsville

Warriors can't pin down victory despite advantage in total pins

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Granite City and Collinsville always maintain a heated rivalry.

Girls' prep bowling no matter what sport is involved.

So it should come as no surprise that the Warriors and Kahoks ended up just as they had begun in a Dec. 7 match. "We actually beat them in total pins," Granite City bowling coach Bill Puhse said. "But the way the 36-point system is set up you can end the match tied."

The 18-18 final score came after the Warriors had jumped the Kahoks at the starting gate, winning game one 748-685.

"In the first game we did pretty well," Puhse said. "Our average is about 720, so we were above that. Shelly (Pulaski) struggled a little bit, but we still beat them by 83 pins. It looked like we had it pretty well in hand."

But looks can be deceiving, and Granite lost game two 683-683.

"All we had to do was bowl our average, and we didn't," Puhse said. "We only got two total points overall, and we were tied after two games with nine points each, but we were still up by 50 pins overall."

Then the tribe rolled it down.

"In the last game, they bowled a 634, but we only bowled a 617," Puhse said. "The girls really struggled that game. The lanes were breaking down and getting drier. They were pretty dry to begin with."

Holiday event draws plenty of grappling powers

Participants in 39th annual Granite City tournament include Edwardsville, two-time event champion Oakville

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The 39th Annual William "Red" Schmitt Holiday Wrestling Tournament is just 11 days away, and the event includes an impressive list of teams. Rocky Streeb will march his Oakville team into the fray.

The Tigers are two-time defending champions of the Holiday Tournament.

Mare Stevener (Hazelwood Central), Harold Ritchie (St. Charles County Francis Howell North) and Scott Fulton (Florissant McClellan North) complete the migration from Missouri.

Belleville East, Belleville West and Althoff will represent southern Illinois, along with O'Fallon, Triad, Carbondale, Bethalto Civic Memorial and Southwestern Conference opponent East St. Louis.

Edwardsville, who beat the host Warriors in a dual match earlier this season, also will compete in the event.

Mt. Zion's Grant Eckenrodt and Mahomet

Seymour's Rob Porter lead their respective clubs down from the north end of the state for this annual IHSA playoff preview.

Baseball's 'slide' not evident in lists of greatest athletes

'Tis the season to come out with lists. Not shopping lists, but end-of-the-year, end-of-the-century and end-of-the-millennium lists.

The lists of the greatest athletes of the century seem to be topped by the same group — Jim Thorpe, Michael Jordan, Muhammad Ali, Babe Ruth.

In one recent poll I saw, I was not so much interested in how the individuals were ranked as much as I was how the sports were represented.

While many people think baseball is a dying sport in this country, it headed the list with 24 baseball players being named among the top 101 athletes in the century. (There was a tie for the No. 100 spot.)

Next in line were the Olympic sports, which I grouped together, with 18 athletes on the list. That was followed by football with 14, basketball with 11 and tennis with 10. Other sports with the top athletes were boxing, seven; ice hockey and golf, six apiece; horse racing, three; and soccer and auto racing, one apiece.

The list was very heavily weighted toward American athletes. I'm sure if the poll had been taken in another country, the sports would be represented differently.

But since the poll was taken as it was, it's not surprising to see baseball head the list. It has been around a lot longer at the professional level than other sports.

Also, it's a sport many of us have played in our lifetime in one form or another. And it's a sport that we probably understand more. It's part of the American psyche. It's ingrained in our culture. Americans often mark time by the standard of memorable baseball games.

With a leader like Babe Ruth, baseball has a magic about it. His legend becomes more "Ruthian" every year.

When he was doing his thing in the 1920s, the omnipresent eye of television was not around to record his every move. Much of his legend comes through the written word and word of mouth — two forms of communication that add to the legend of the Babe and the sport.

Baseball is a sport, too, which measures players from all eras with statistics. A home run is still a home run. An earned run average means the roughly same now as it did then. Three strikes still constitute a strikeout.

While other sports have changed dramatically — basketball has added dunking and the 3-point shot; football added the forward pass; equipment changes are revolutionizing golf and tennis — baseball has remained virtually the same.

Even with the explosion of sports television in the 1980s and '90s, it was hard to knock baseball from the top of sports on the greatest athletes' list. Names like Willie Mays, Ty Cobb, Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Hank Aaron, Sandy Koufax, Rogers Hornsby, Bob Gibson, and on and on. Not made-for-television sports personalities, but baseball players who have weathered the test of time to become part of American sports lore. All familiar names.

Michael Jordan and Muhammad Ali are to be highly praised for what they did in their sports. But the stars in those sports and others don't stack up to baseball. Some may argue for football, but I still see baseball as America's pastime.

Warriors girls tie Collinsville

The girls were having trouble finding a line to throw. "They were also missing spares that they should have been picking up. That is one of the things that we have really been working on, and the wheels kind of came off. Our scores suffered, and we only had two of nine points in the final game."

The Warriors took seven of nine points overall and ended with 18. "It was definitely a disappointment," Puhse said. "The last time against Collinsville at Camelot we beat them pretty handily. To come to our house and tie, especially after going into their house and beating them soundly, is not what you want to do."

Boys win

The other side didn't have such problems, as the males stamped Collinsville 27-9. Travis Papp (25) and Brad Smith (22) led the way for a solid opening game.

"The boys did better," Puhse said. "Our boys average is 820. We started off strong with an 853. Travis and Brad both started off strong. Collinsville rolled a 743, so we beat them by 110 pins. We took eight of nine points in that first game."

But in the second game the boys found themselves in the same lackluster gutter as the girls.

"The guys started having some trouble in the second game," Puhse said. "Part of that was because a couple of guys were having trouble finding the pocket. We lost 760-748. So we were tied, just like the girls, after two games."

Unlike the girls, the boys didn't falter. They came out and buried the Kahoks 819-643.

It was a matter of how we were going to do in that third game," Puhse said. "I subbed in Calvin Powell, and he rolled a 206. So he had a good, solid game for us."

Papp tossed a 217, and Paul Richter added a 226. Brad Smith rolled a 170 in the final game for the Warriors, who raised their record to 7-1 on the season.

"Brad was struggling, but he did a good job of picking up his spares," Puhse said. "He bowled a good game to help us out. (The Kahoks) didn't even break 700."

"A lot of the reason we won was because of the beginning of that third game. The guys knew it was tied and they would have to come up big. The first half of the last game they came out real strong and knocked the wind out of Collinsville's sails. It shifted the momentum to us. Their team felt apart and we got all nine points for the last game and nine for the series. We really solidified the match in that last game."

Next up for the Warriors is a Belleville East squad whose talent breaks through the glass ceiling.

"They have been a real strong team in the (Southwestern) Conference, both boys and girls," Puhse said. "Many teams we face have either a good boys team or a good girls team. East has both."

"The girls average around 780, which isn't a whole lot off of the average of most guys teams that we face. They are usually a solid team. They do all the things we try to - they throw strikes and when they don't they pick up their spares. That is what we want to do. If we can do that, we can beat them. If we can come out and rise to the

Granite City hurt by slow start in tilt against Jerseyville

have to have other girls step up and help her out."

The Warriors got that assistance, and it was from a surprise source. Sarah Kuehneltributed 10 points, four rebounds, three steals and two assists.

"Sarah Kuehnel came in and did a really good job," Moad said. "I put her in to give Sarah Luchmann a rest and she did so well that I just kept her in."

"We can't come out and play with no intensity and no energy from the start," Moad said. "That is hurting us right now. We are a slow-starting team. But all is not lost. At least the long-range bombs are starting to find their targets."

"There are some good points," Moad said. "We are starting to hit our 3-pointers. We were 6 for 13 against Jerseyville."

After a match with East St. Louis at home Wednesday, the Warriors host Bethalto Civic Memorial tonight.

"We played them in the (Redbird Tip-Off Classic) Tournament and won 51-47," Moad said. "They are very disciplined. They run their half-court offense very well. It gave us a lot of trouble the last time. Our press wore them down, and we gradually pulled away. It was a tie game in the first half."

"We have to come out ready to play in the first half this time. If we do, our confidence will carry us into the second half. We are a little timid at times, and hopefully, some experience will take care of that."

TOP TEN

Best races of 1999 as selected by NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton:

1. GOODY'S HEADACHE POWDER 500, BRISTOL: Dale Earnhardt won the season's most controversial race, bumping Terry Labonte from behind on the last lap and touching off a multi-car pileup. Jimmy Spencer drove through the wreckage to finish second.
2. DAYTONA 500: Jeff Gordon outdueled Earnhardt on Earnhardt's favorite track. Gordon's late pass of Rusty Wallace, in which he drove his Chevrolet down to the track's apron and barely missed the slower car of Ricky Rudd, will be recalled in scores of future reminiscences.
3. PEPSI 400, MICHIGAN: Bobby Labonte prevailed in maybe the season's most competitive race, a five-way battle with Gordon, Tony Stewart, Dale Jarrett and Earnhardt. Ward Burton won the pole but finished last, thanks to an early crash.
4. NAPA AUTOCARE 500, MARTINSVILLE: In his first race with Brian Whitsett as crew chief — Ray Evernham resigned to head up Dodge's impending entry into the series — Gordon outdueled Earnhardt.
5. COCA-COLA 600, CHARLOTTE: Jeff Burton outdueled Pontiac teammates Bobby Labonte and Stewart, who had driven in the Indianapolis 500 earlier in the day. Mark Martin actually finished third because Stewart, exhausted from the long day, faded in the final laps. Stewart had to be carried from his car to the infield hospital for treatment.

6. PEPSI 400, DAYTONA: Jarrett barely had enough fuel to win the Daytona night race. The race ended under caution with Earnhardt running second. Joe Nemechek won the pole but could finish no better than 16th.

7. WINSTON 500, TALLADEGA: Earnhardt became the third driver to pull off a season sweep, and once again it was Jarrett who finished second. Nemechek won the pole, and Rudd finished third, matching his season best.

8. TRANSOUTH FINANCIAL 400, DARLINGTON: Jeff Burton crashed on the final green-flag lap but won when the race was shortened to 224.024 miles by rain. Mike Skinner relinquished the point lead to Burton. Stewart had his first top-10 finish.

9. POP SECRET 400, ROCKINGHAM: Jeff Burton won for the sixth time, and you guessed it, brother Ward finished second. Martin started out front but finished sixth.

10. NAPA 500, ATLANTA: Bobby Labonte roared up through the pack from 37th starting position to win for the fifth time. The race saw 38 lead changes, a season high.

FROM THE ARCHIVES

■ NASCAR once had two Bud Moores, both from South Carolina. Spartanburg's Bud Moore was a legendary mechanic and car owner who won championships with Joe Weatherly and races with many drivers. "Little" Bud Moore, from Charleston, was a fierce competitor on short tracks but never quite turned the corner on Winston Cup (then Grand National) stardom.

AROUND THE GARAGE

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week
 Hendrick Motorsports has hired Robbie Loomis away from Petty Enterprises to serve as Jeff Gordon's crew chief next year.
 According to a release, Brian Whitsett will become team manager of the No. 24 Chevrolet and will handle overall management duties.
 Whitsett replaced Ray Evernham at the beginning of October when Evernham left to head up the 2001 entry of Dodge into the Winston Cup Series. Gordon won the first two races under Whitsett's direction but then finished 12th, 11th, 10th and 10th in the season's final four races, dropping from fourth to sixth in the final point standings.

 Loomis, 35, has been a crew chief since 1991, working with Richard Petty, Rick Wilson, Jimmy Hensley, Wally Dallenbach Jr., Bobby Hamilton and John Andretti.
 NEW CAR OWNER: Tampa, Fla., businessman Tony Misuraca heads a group of investors who have purchased Cale Yarborough's No. 98 Winston Cup team.
 Yarborough, the only driver ever to win three consecutive NASCAR titles (1978-79), will retain minority ownership, with the team being known as Misuraca-Yarborough Motorsports.

 Misuraca owns motocross and supercross motorcycle teams. He will reportedly attempt to keep Rick Mast as the Ford team's driver and is also trying to renew a sponsorship with Universal Studios.
 The deal was scheduled to have been consummated last Friday.
 IMAGINE IF YOU WERE STILL WINNING: The pressure exerted on drivers off the track drew the attention of Darrell Waltrip in a recent interview.
 It's getting to the point where the sport's stars barely have enough time to fulfill their duties behind the wheel, Waltrip said.

 "All of the drivers I have ever been around have never been able to say 'no,'" he added, "but with sponsors spending more money, wanting more races and more appearances, they want to capitalize on their investments. They want more than just their name on the side of the car."
 "Drivers are racing the clock on and off the track. It's a lifestyle that has a great potential for burnout. I don't think people realize the stress race-car drivers live with. We are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. When the phone rings, we know we have something to do."

FOR THE KIDS
 ■ Many NASCAR fans build realistic scale models of their favorite drivers' cars. Among the recent releases (124 scale) from Monogram are Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s Chevrolet Monte Carlo, which won the Busch Grand National title the last two years, and the Ford Thunderbird that his father drove for Bud Moore in 1962. Since a diecast manufacturer has recently released three different sets of diecast cars representing point achievements won by Tony Labonte's No. 5 Chevrolet over the past two seasons, as well as Mike Skinner's No. 31 Chevy, and the Busch Grand National cars of Mike McLaughlin and Jason Keller, we recommend that you visit your local hobby store first, but these products and many others may also be purchased online (www.bamp.com) of the BSR Web site.

THE WINSTON CUP CIRCUIT

The Pennzoil Motorsports 2000 show is scheduled for Jan. 14-16 at Fort Washington (Pa.) Expo Center near Philadelphia.
 Among NASCAR drivers making appearances at "Autograph Alley" are Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Steve Park.

 The annual trade show will feature more than 600 booths, with auto racing publications, part manufacturers, engine builders, speed equipment suppliers, accessory manufacturers, trailer manufacturers, tire companies, chassis builders, auto racing fuels, novelty items, collectibles, sanctioning bodies, speedway displays, sponsors and video producers represented.

 The show will be open from 1-10 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday.

 Another highlight is the annual U.S. Tobacco Ms. Motorsports pageant.
 For more information, call Earl Krause at (609) 888-3618.

PROFILE

Robert Pressley

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week
 Robert Pressley will forever be the answer of a trivia question because he is the driver who, in 1995, replaced Harry Gant in the famous Skoal-sponsored No. 33.
 Pressley has not been able to capitalize on that legacy, though he was runner-up to Ricky Craven in the rookie-of-the-year race. Late in 1996, he moved over to Gary Bechtel's team, then moved to his present team late in 1997.
 The high point of Pressley's career to date has been a third-place finish at Texas on April 5, 1998.

Robert Pressley has yet to win in 136 starts.

AGE: 40
 HOMETOWN: Born in Washington, D.C., but has lived for most of his life in Asheville, N.C.
 WIFE: Gina
 CHILDREN: Coleman (11), Shelby (5)
 CAR: No. 77 Jasper Engines Ford Taurus, owned by Doug Bawel
 RECORD: 136 starts, 0 poles, 0 wins, 3 top-five finishes, 5 top-10s, almost $4 million in career earnings.
 FIRSTS: Start (Feb. 20, 1994, at Daytona), pole (none), win (none)
 WHO ARE THE DRIVERS YOU HAVE ADMIRER MOST DURING YOUR CAREER? "I don't know if I'd use the word 'admire,' but I've enjoyed working with Rick Mast and Harry Gant. It is nice to see what Mark Martin has done. ... He gives a lot of help to younger drivers. If you want to mold yourself after someone, I would have to say Mark Martin. I guess my dad (Bob) was my biggest influence. He started racing in 1961. I have been going since I was 2. He never pushed us into it. My oldest brother, Charley, got me into it more than anything else."

 DO YOU PREFER FLAT OR HIGH-BANKED TRACKS? "It doesn't matter. I would hate to run the whole season on either (kind of) track. That is the greatest thing about NASCAR, the way they have their schedule. We go from superspeedway to short track to road track. I believe if we had the same tracks, it would then become like a regular job, going to the same place every week."
 IS THE SCHEDULE GETTING TOO LONG? "I don't think it really matters. As for myself, personally, it isn't as hard on the drivers as it is on the shop help. They pay the price at that deal. Drivers will be gone anyway, doing appearances. I would rather have more races, because that's what we love to do."

Who's Hot... Who's Not

- HOT: Jeff Gordon has a new crew chief in Robbie Loomis.
- NOT: Petty Enterprises is short one very important man.

Trackside Trivia

1. Who won a NASCAR race by driving the only car left running?
2. Who was the only woman ever to race in the Daytona 500?
3. Who are the three Elliott brothers?

ANSWERS
 1. Curtis Turner, in the Convertible Division of Ashville-Woodville (N.C.) Speedway in 1957.
 2. Janet Guthrie, in 1977; 3. Bill, Ernie and Don.

Fan Tips

■ ESPN Video's latest NASCAR product is "Greatest Races," part of a collection of videos celebrating five decades of drivers, races and rivalries in NASCAR's storied history. Among the inclusions: the first Daytona 500 in 1959, which ended in a photo finish between Lee Petty and Johnny Beauchamp, and the 1992 fall race at Atlanta, where Richard Petty ended his career and Jeff Gordon began his, and where six drivers were in contention for the national championship.

Holiday Gift & Dining Guide

20 years of favorites in Pillsbury's new cookbook

Fads come and go, but anything considered a perennial favorite is always appreciated. This certainly holds true for cooking.

If you don't know what to serve for your next dinner party, remember dishes that withstand the test of time are always in style. You can find the perfect dish in the new Pillsbury: The Best Of Classic Cookbooks (Potter), a collection of 275 recipes from 20 years of America's best-selling cooking magazine. It includes appetizers through dessert as well as chapters on vegetarian main dishes and holiday specialties.

Useful information such as how long it will take to prepare and cook a recipe, suggestions for freezing, garnishing or modifying dishes, as well as tips for entertaining are sprinkled throughout the book.

What makes a cookbook popular—dependable recipes that emphasize easy-to-find ingredients and simple cooking instructions for dishes that will earn rave reviews from your family and friends. Pillsbury: The Best Of Classic Cookbooks proves that "an old favorite" doesn't have to mean old-fashioned. Cooking styles have evolved over the years. Today's recipes are shorter, quicker and leaner, and the pantry of the 1990's and beyond includes couscous, pesto and other "new" choices. The Best Of Classic Cookbooks seeks a balance between contemporary flavors and familiar favorites.

So, what time-tested dish do you want to prepare? How about a dish with pesto?

Along with Christopher Columbus, pesto sauce is one of Genoa, Italy's claims to fame. The wonderfully rich sauce is made with basil leaves, garlic, olive oil, parmesan cheese, and usually pine nuts or blanched almonds.

Try this recipe from Pillsbury: The Best Of Classic Cookbooks:

Chicken With Pasta And Pesto

5 oz. (2 cups) uncooked medium

shell pasta
1 tablespoon oil
4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 (14 oz.) can artichoke hearts, drained, quartered
1/2 cup purchased pesto
1/2 cup chopped tomato
1 oz. (1/4 cup) shredded fresh parmesan cheese

Cook pasta to desired doneness as directed on package. Drain; cover to keep warm. Meanwhile, heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add chicken; cook and stir four to five minutes or until browned and no longer pink. Stir in artichoke hearts, pesto and pasta. Cook an additional one to two minutes or until thoroughly heated, stirring constantly. Sprinkle with tomato and parmesan cheese.

Preparation time: 20 minutes
Yield: Four 1 1/2 cup servings

Here's a relaxing new way to take care of your gift list

Each year, you try to find gifts that are perfectly suited to everyone on your list. And when you can't find that perfect something, you switch gears and decide on a generic gift certificate from the company of your choice. You've crossed another name off your list, but may not have made the desired impression on your loved one, friend or coworker.

But what if your special someone had more of a choice about their certificate, and could even decide where to use it? Now there's a way to buy a gift certificate that is neither generic nor impersonal.

You can give the precious gift of relaxation in the form of a spa gift certificate. One innovative company we found offers a gift certificate that is good at over 700 day spas and salons across the country. The beauty of it is, you don't have to decide whether it will be for a massage, herbal wrap, manicure or other service. The recipient chooses exactly what spa treatment they want to indulge in and even where it will be done. A directory of participating day spas comes with the certificate. "Most people would love a day at a spa, but are shy about treating themselves," says Joyce Greenbaum, president and founder of 1-888-SPA-WISH.

"These certificates let you treat someone to a spa visit without struggling over which spa or services they would prefer. With Spa Wish certificates, the recipient gets all the choice." It's as simple as ordering flowers—only more fun and original—and it's a gift that the recipient won't forget. All it takes is a phone call or a visit to the Internet. The only decision necessary is the amount of the certificate.

For an extra special treat, the gift certificate can be presented inside a picture frame with scented bath crystals and relaxation music. Spa Wish gift certificates are a truly personalized gift for everyone on your gift list, whether they live in your house or across the country. To order a spa gift certificate, call 1-888-SPA-WISH (1-888-772-9474) or visit the Web site www.spawish.com.

Give memorable ideas from century's greatest thinkers

If you are looking for the perfect gift for this holiday season why not consider a thought-provoking new video series with some fascinating thoughts on some of the 20th century's greatest thinkers and what they had to say about the next millennium.

The 16-part video series, called Potentials. Envisioning The New Millennium, features interviews with renowned authors and futurists such as: Gene Roddenberry, creator of "Star Trek," Ray Bradbury, the legendary science fiction writer, Buckminster Fuller, architect, inventor and designer, Norman Cousins, editor and author and many others.

Potentials is hosted by author Barbara Marx Hubbard whom Buckminster Fuller once referred to as "the best informed human now alive regarding Futurism."

The series consists of four volumes, each with four episodes. Many have viewed the series report each of the show's guests and themes blends to create a futuristic vision of human potential at its finest. The corporate sponsor of the video series is Faultless Starch/Bon Ami, a company which makes Bon Ami, a cleanser preferred by many environmentalists and futurists because it does not contain additives such as chlorine, perfume, and dye.

Individuals, schools and institutions that want to order the video series can find information on the award winning Web site: potentialsmedia.com or by calling 1-888-374-7764 toll-free.

Trend, floral consultant previews hottest colors

A color can define an era. Remember Kingfisher blue in the 50's? Avocado green in the 70's? Nancy Reagan red in the 80's?

"Color trends are manifested in many ways in home interiors, gifts and with floral arrangements where consumers have the freedom to experiment with emerging color trends affordably," says Denise Lee, trend consultant for the Society of American Florists (SAF).

Instead of one signal color for this era, Lee highlights three trends in the marketplace shaping floral designs for the new millennium:

Bold and Bright

An increasingly diverse population includes outdoorsy, night-life-loving Gen X-ers and baby boomers refusing to mellow.

This trend manifests itself in color variety, exotic design and brighter hues. Rich reds, intense violets and bright yellows are hot in floral arrangements with stronger, vivid color palette.

"In a spring arrangement, for example," says Lee, "you may see a switch from lavender to deep purple or royal blue, from pale to lemon yellow, and from light pink and peach to fuchsia and coral."

Ultra-Pastels

On the opposite side of the spectrum, many Americans are shifting toward balance and simplicity.

"Consumers are lightening up their environments with neutrals, sheer colors and super-light pastels," says Lee. Florists complement this look by using one color of flower in a vase several stems of white iris or butter yellow tulips, for example. Another technique is to use a cluster of delicate vases, each holding a single stem of a soft-colored flower.

Techno-Colors

Hi-tech vibes inspire new color schemes, too. Today's technology enables people to see more of the approximately six million colors detectable by the human eye.

Technology also helps flower growers select features they wish to enhance by cultivating new varieties to fill consumers' demand for diversity.

"These new varieties of flowers are so striking that they're instant style-setters," says Lee. She suggests sending two-toned roses or mini carnations to show someone a different side of their favorite flower.

Becoming a Color Connoisseur

Like fashion and interior designers, professional florists have their finger on the pulse of today's newest hues, using color trend analysis to artistically create arrangements for maximum visual impact. "Your florist can help you expand your color palette," says Lee. "With just a little advice and guidance, you too can become a connoisseur of color."

Set your table with Coca-Cola collectibles

Today, nearly 40 percent of us order a soft drink with our meals at restaurants. In the 1920's, advertising for Coca-Cola began to proclaim it was "A Great Combination" with food. In addition to print and television, local bottlers of Coca-Cola made available to soda fountains and diners many items that helped make that perfect combination.

Since then, many of today's collectibles such as china plates, flatware, and bell shaped fountain glasses bearing the Coca-Cola trademark are distributed to eateries around the world.

Q: I have a round, china plate that has a bottle and glass of Coca-Cola. "Refresh Yourself" and three, white Coca-Cola trademarks in red boxes printed on the front side. Were these sold in stores? What is it worth? L.K., Paris, Tennessee.

A: The ceramic plate you describe is most likely from the 1930's. The eight-inch diameter plate was manufactured by The Crockery City Ice & Product Company for a local Coca-Cola bottler. This was one of many plates used by many bottlers at the time to promote the sale of Coca-Cola with meals. According to Petretti's Coca-Cola Collectible Price Guide, one of these plates in mint condition can be worth up to $700.

Q: At a garage sale, I came across a spoon and fork with the Coca-Cola logo embossed on the silverware handle. They look rather old. I would like some information about them. R.B., Edon, Ohio.

A: Your spoon and fork were part of a complete set of flatware. Produced in the 1920's, the set was part of a promotion to run our bottlers and the many retail outlets that sold Coca-Cola. The seven-piece place setting contained salad and dinner forks, table, tea, soup and dessert spoons and a butter knife. Today, a complete place setting has been valued at around $1,100. This was not the first time the Coca-Cola trademark appeared on silverware. In the 1890's, when Coca-Cola was served in soda fountains, it was mixed to order. The soda jerk would combine the correct amount of Coca-Cola syrup and carbonated water in the glass, and stir. The company gave to soda fountains a silver-plated spoon with "Drink Coca-Cola, Delicious - Refreshing" embossed on the bowl to ensure a perfect glass of Coca-Cola was served to the customer.

Today, those collectibles have contemporary counterparts which are available in the Coca-Cola Collector's Catalog and at many local stores.

Last Minute Gift Ideas

Whether it's the person who has everything - or just hates almost everything - there's a hard to buy for individual on every Christmas list.

To help solve this problem, our staff diligently combed the corners of area stores, searching for that perfect, out-of-the-ordinary present. What they found are six gift ideas sure to delight even the pickiest person.

What Christmas gift is more appropriate than holiday music?

From the lilting strains of "The Nutcracker Suite" to Bing Crosby's "White Christmas," nothing can put people into a holiday mood like music.

But for the more discriminating Holiday shopper, we offer "Dr. Demento Presents The Greatest Novelty CD Of All Time."

Demento is known for his nationally syndicated radio show featuring novelty or unusual or comic recordings.

Songs range from "Jingle Bells" by the Singing Dogs to "Christmas At Ground Zero" by Weird Al Yankovic.

Other selections include "The Chipmunk Song" (I still want my hula hoop) to Yogi Bresson's "I Yust Go Nuts At Christmas."

Although available at fine record stores everywhere, we found a copy for $14.99 at Vintage Vinyl in the Bellemore Village Shopping Center, 3210 Nameoki Road, Granite City.

Who doesn't need more Christmas ornaments, especially when it's a Bat'ah-wielding Klingon, part of Hallmark's "Deep Space Nine" series of collectable ornaments. It shows Worf, the Federation's Klingon, preparing for personal combat with a Bat'ah, a crescent-shaped edged weapon. (For next to a reindeer can be lots of fun.)

Star Trek ornaments are just some of many available at Jan's Hallmarks, including its Granite City location at 19 Crossroads Plaza. Prices range from $9.95 to $14.95. Of course, it's best to grab these quick because they can become very expensive collectibles, as anyone who owns Hallmark's first Starship Enterprise ornament can attest.

For the Disney lover in the family, there is the perfect gift that will help them reach out and touch someone. The Goofy Animated Talking Telephone is available at Kmart stores for $69.99.

Goofy will move and talk when the telephone rings, lifting his head and opening his eyes. He alerts you to incoming-calls in his own unique voice with one of five different sayings. The phone has a simulated antique rotary dial with a push button dial pad. The lucky owner can switch from Goofy's voice to regular ringer control. It is hearing aid compatible and needs four C batteries that are not included.

There's one gift that mixes history with novelty. The commemorative 50th anniversary World's Largest Catsup Bottle sweatshirt will keep anyone warm this winter and will make the perfect Christmas gift. The Catsup Bottle Preservation Group is happy that this sweatshirt is available, along with several other "wintry" items throughout downtown Collinsville. The gray sweatshirt adorned with the famous, 50th anniversary logo design in red and blue. Adult sizes, up to 2XL, are available for $23.95. Children sizes are available for $19.95. This wonderful Christmas gift can be found at The Flower Basket, Stitch 'n Thyme or Ashmann's Pharmacy, all in downtown Collinsville, or online at www.catsupbottle.com.

The St. Louis Rams are one of the hottest tickets in town and a popular gift theme this season. The Rams inflatable helmet can be bought from one of the many vendors outside the Trans World Dome before or after Sunday's game, a perfect last minute Christmas gift. The helmet costs under $25.

But if an inflatable helmet isn't quite right for the Rams fan on your list, try Dizzy Dugout in Collinsville or Gus' Fashions & Shoes Limited, located at 1201 Washington, St. Louis.

Steve Castell of Dizzy Dugout, said their Rams supply has depleted following the steady Rams winning streak. But there are still Rams three foot team banners for $9.95, T-shirts, hats and window decals.

Gus Torregrossa, store owner, said he has received phone calls from all over the United States, especially from Los Angeles where the Rams originated.

His merchandise includes: Western Division Championship sweatshirts, $25; Championship T-shirts, $18; hats, $20; umbrellas, $9, and blankets, $22.

"They have been the hottest thing since Mark McGwire," Torregrossa said. "We sold

There is something different for the movie lover this year, too.

"Groovy, baby," so says Austin Powers, the English spy stud who has prevented the diabolical Doctor Evil from conquering the planet in flicks called "Austin Powers: Man of International Mystery" and the "Spy Who Shagged Me."

Powers has been transformed from the big screen into cardboard life-size figures that can be purchased at Kyle's Baseball Cards and Comics, 22 Nameoki Village, Granite City.

Austin Powers figures, as well as those of big, bad John Wayne, the goddess Xena, Billy "Boy" Clinton and the hilarious Three Stooges, stand about 6 feet and cost about $24.95.

Whether they're a trivia fan or just naturally curious, the fact-obsessed are sure to be delighted by the "Guinness World Records: Millennium Edition."

This 284-page hardback answers those pressing questions like who is the tallest person alive and how long did the longest kiss last?

The book that lists for $24.99 is available at Wal-Mart for $17.99.

Recycling day successful

Recycle and don't become extinct was the theme recently for Mrs. Falbe's second grade class at Holy Family School. The students made T-Rex and dinosaur banks out of two-liter soda bottles. The class also made clay fossil prints, animal group booklets and banners filled with dinosaur drawings that each student had done.

In an effort to help save the environment, Holy Family School is collecting Schnuck's plastic bags that will be recycled into Enviro Bags. The school is also collecting Enviro Bag bar codes to earn cash.

MCT employee has reason to be thankful

One Madison County Transit Employee has something extra to be thankful for this holiday season as the latest recipient of the Nelson Hagnauer Excellence in Service Award.

Marybeth Modlin was chosen by her co-workers as the winner of the quarterly award for the third quarter of 1999. In addition to a certificate, she was presented with a check for $500 in recognition of her exemplary service to MCT and its customers.

Modlin, who works in transit support and scheduling, has been with MCT since 1985. Todd Plesko, director of operations for MCT, cited Modlin's excellent relationships with MCT's customers as the primary reason she was singled out for the awards program. "Thousands of people who use our services recognize Marybeth's voice for dealing with her over the phone, and our great reputation is in large part due to the warmth and caring she conveys," Plesko said.

Lisa Underwood, director of paratransit service for the transit district and Marybeth's immediate supervisor, agreed with Plesko. "People really look forward to calling Marybeth because she has taken the time over the years to get to know them and their families. Our customers truly think of her as a friend even though they may never have met her in person."

"Thousands of people who use our services recognize Marybeth's voice for dealing with her over the phone, and our great reputation is in large part due to the warmth and caring she conveys."

Director of operations

MCT chairman, Granite City Mayor Ron Selph, said, "Marybeth is the perfect person to interact with our customers over the phone and there's no more deserving of this award at this special time of the year." Selph presented Modlin with the award certificate and check during the transit district's November meeting. MCT introduced the awards program in July 1998 to recognize employees who go the extra mile in terms of providing excellent service, both on and off the job.

Test your food knowledge now

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

I hate onions and celery. This may mean nothing to you, but it has raised arguments with my mother since I was a little kid. I would see her putting onions and celery in foods like dressing and be repulsed by it. She would say, "You can't even taste it." I would reply, "If you can't taste it, why put it in the dressing?" I have never won any of these battles over food.

I think it is interesting how varied eating tastes are among humans. In most of the animal kingdom, what critters eat is well documented. Some creatures eat grass, some eat hay, some eat other animals. However, generally, you will find that a seal will consume what other seals do and a grasshopper will devour what other grasshoppers do.

In people, though, you get a wide variety of opinions on food. Have you ever tried to order pizzas for a group of, say, eight people? It usually brings on a major dispute. Somebody does not like hamburger. Somebody else does not want Canadian bacon. If my friend Jeff is one of the participants, you are not allowed to order mushrooms, black olives or vegetables of any kind as a topping.

People eat things I would never consider putting in my mouth. Limburger cheese is one of the vilest smelling items I have ever encountered and I have no desire to taste it.

In south St. Louis, you see signs advertising brain sandwiches at many bars. No thanks. You also see jars of pickled eggs in many taverns and I have to wonder how drunk somebody has to be to down one of those.

I am not claiming to be a food expert. In fact, I am the antithesis of a gourmet. I love fast food. I have the ability to cook about four things - toast, canned soup, frozen pizza and air-popped popcorn.

Everyone is entitled to his or her own food tastes. I would have to say that my favorite entree is barbecued chicken

Christmas movies always fun

By Wade Alberty
Staff writer

The holiday season often reigns supreme when it comes to the big screen, but this year may be an exception.

Most years, after Thanksgiving passes, local movie theaters are filled with spectators hoping a holiday-theme movie will put them in the mood to put up their tree. This year, there is an unusually small number of holiday movies, leaving many people to seek their holiday favorites in the video stores.

"We start getting a lot of Christmas movie rentals starting after Thanksgiving and until a little after New Years," said Michelle Tufts, assistant manager at Pick-A-Video in Collinsville.

Tufts said many parents come in and get movies to watch with their kids.

"The new movie 'Jack

Frost' with Michael Keaton is popular, along with 'Frosty the Snowman,' 'Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer,' the Chipmunks' Christmas movie and 'Winnie the Pooh's Season of Giving,'" Tufts said.

Other popular Christmas movies include "Home Alone" (1, 2 and 3), "The Christmas Story," "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," "Miracle on 34th Street," "Santa Clause Comes to Town," "A Charlie Brown Christmas" and "Jingle All the Way."

David Barger, assistant manager at C&M Video in Cahokia, whose favorite Christmas movie is "A Christmas Carol," said he feels a lot of people rent Christmas movies because the movies aren't shown on television as much anymore.

"A lot of people rent 'It's a Wonderful Life' since it is not on television anymore. People miss it," Barger said.

With the adults, "National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation" is a favorite.

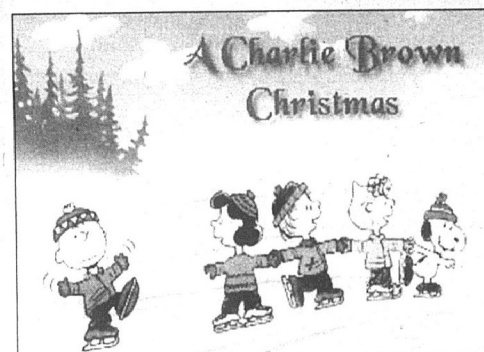

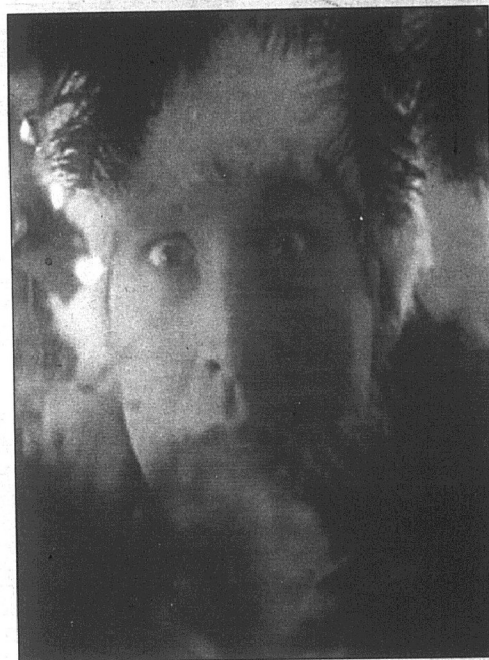

"Everyone seems to love that one," said Amanda Watson, a clerk at Pick-A-Video.

Barger said rentals in general are up during the Christmas season.

"When the kids are out of school over break a lot of parents bring them in and rent games and movies," Barger said. "On days when people are snowed in and school is cancelled, people can still make it to the video store. They will be here waiting at 9 a.m."

Barger also has a unique drinking game idea for one particular holiday movie.

"When watching 'The Grinch Who Stole Christmas' take a drink every time someone in the movie says 'hoo,'" Barger said. "The movie will get funnier the longer you watch it."

'Man On The Moon' resurrects Andy Kaufman

By Ronnie Roy
Staff writer

Andy Kaufman - comedian, song and dance man, or professional practical joker?

The answer, it seems, is all of the above and more, as shown in the new film, "Man On The Moon," starring Jim Carrey as the beloved - and hated - performance artist.

The film begins with Carrey as Kaufman's most popular character, Foreign Man, in a wonderfully bizarre opening scene. The story then shifts to Kaufman's childhood home, where an introverted young boy performs for invisible cameras in his bedroom walls.

The film races through the early years (probably too quickly), from struggling comic to "Saturday Night Live" performer to sitcom star on "Taxi."

Director Milos Forman ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Amadeus") is more interested in Kaufman's bizarre acts - lounge singer Tony Clifton, his period as an inter-gender wrestler, and his explosive performances on "Late Night with David Letterman" and the late sketch-comedy show, "Fridays."

Danny DeVito (Kaufman's co-star on "Taxi") served as a producer of the film and stars as Kaufman's long-suffering manager, George Shapiro. It's his job to convince Kaufman that starring in a sitcom is a good career move, and tries, often unsuccessfully, to reign in the comic's more outrageous stunts.

Rounding out the cast is Courtney Love as Kaufman's love interest, Lynne Margulies, and Paul Giamatti as Bob Zmuda, Kaufman's writing partner and usually the only other person in on the jokes.

Kaufman was a unique talent whose goal seemed to be to provoke a reaction, and it didn't matter to him if it was love or hatred. It's a testament to his popularity in the entertainment community that so many of his peers (from the cast of "Taxi" to wrestler Jerry Lawler to David Letterman) appear in the film.

Carrey follows up his Golden Globe Award-winning role in "The Truman Show" with another strong performance. His resemblance to Kaufman is uncanny.

If you're looking for a factual biography of the late comedian, you'd be better off looking elsewhere. The film takes liberties with people, places and events to fit Kaufman's 35-year life into a two-hour movie.

The comic died of lung cancer in 1984. Many people, including family and friends, believed the initial reports of his illness were just another stunt.

But the film stays true to the spirit of the late artist, presenting him as neither hero nor villain, but as an eccentric, unique talent.

"Man On The Moon" is a Universal Pictures release. It is rated R.

'Anna and the King' offers rare treat to open-minded

By Steve Bryan

Folks expecting to see a Yul Brynner clone singing and dancing with a Deborah Kerr lookalike will be sorely disappointed with "Anna and the King."

Anyone who goes to see this film with an open mind, on the other hand, is in for a real treat.

MOVIE REVIEW

This is a rich, colorful and highly original interpretation of a classic, real-life love story.

Based on the diaries of Anna Leonowens, who, some experts argue, fabricated most of the story, "Anna and the King" has a more realistic, authentic feel than the previously released "Anna and the King of Siam" or "The King and I."

Ignoring the more sanitized, Rodgers and Hammerstein musical version, director Andy Tennant ("Ever After") instead takes a serious, adult look at the relationship between the King of Siam and a proper English schoolteacher.

Jodie Foster as Anna Leonowens in 20th Century Fox's "Anna and the King."

Tennant also insisted on creating a wondrous palace for the King, using a crew of 1300 to create a seven-acre palace set at the Clearwater Sanctuary Golf Resort in Perak, Malaysia. The result is quite impressive to view.

'Anna and the King' offers open-minded rare treat

Chow Yun-Fat as King Mongkut of Siam in 20th Century Fox's release "Anna and the King."

employment offer from King Mongkut (Chow Yun-Fat), the ruler of Siam during the later part of the 19th century.

Originally, Leonovics is supposed to instruct Prince Chulalongkorn (Keith Chin), the King's oldest child. It isn't long, however, before Anna's duties include teaching each of the Royal Family's fifty-eight children.

And thanks to their different views on the ways of the world, Anna and the King start out as adversaries, a relationship that eventually softens and turns to love. But in the harsh, political climate of Siam in 1862, this relationship is difficult, if not impossible.

"Anna and the King" is a triumph for all concerned, especially for Jodie Foster and Chow Yun-Fat. Foster brings the right amount of stubbornness and vulnerability to Anna while Yun-Fat is equally impressive as the scholarly, politically savvy King Mongkut.

"Anna and the King," rated PG-13 due to some violent battles and executions, is a wonderful holiday treat for the whole family.

'The End of the Affair' censored

Bored with her loveless marriage to a rising government functionary (Stephen Rea) and fascinated by the outspoken writer, she begins a passionate liaison.

The deception lasts until the two lovers are blasted by a German bomb, and he appears to be dead. When he regains consciousness, she announces without explanation that the affair is over.

They meet again after the war, and their attraction to each other rekindles. Even the husband's discovery of his cuckoldry fails to stop the lovers. But something else does.

Neil Jordan ("The Crying Game") has obviously invested great care in his adaptation; it shows in the photography - misty focus, large close-ups.

But the transposition of the time element is sometimes confusing, and certain lines just don't bear repeating, like: "Love doesn't end just because you can't see each other."

"Never make a promise - you may have to keep it."

Writers are not easy for actors to portray, but Ralph Fiennes is convincing as the headstrong novelist. His intellect shines through, even with lines like, "Pain is easy to write; but what can you write about happiness?"

Julianne Moore ("Boogie Nights") brings her sexuality to her role as well as a vulnerability that makes the wayward wife sympathetic.

"The End of the Affair" marks Rea's eighth film with Jordan, and it provides him with a curious yet effective role. He plays the betrayed husband stone-faced, as a man who prefers not to challenge his wife's transgressions rather than lose her.

The Columbia Pictures release was produced by Jordan and Stephen Woolley. Running time: 105 minutes.
